

How To Delete Friends On Snapchat

Unfriending on Snapchat: When Less is More The little ghost icon. It hovers there, a silent accusation, a reminder of conversations left unread, stories scrolled past, and a digital connection that feels more like a chore than a joy. We've all been there. Stuck in a Snapchat friend circle that's more of a digital graveyard than a vibrant community. But what if the answer to feeling lighter and more present wasn't finding the perfect filter, but finally deleting those friends who aren't adding to our lives? This isn't about malice, it's about mindfulness. It's about reclaiming your digital space and understanding the power of intentional connections. (Image: A split-screen image. One side shows a cluttered Snapchat friends list, overflowing with names. The other side shows a neatly organized list with a handful of meaningful connections.) For me, Snapchat started as a fun way to share fleeting moments with friends. We'd send silly photos of our pets, goofy selfies, and updates on our daily adventures. But as time went on, the app evolved. So did our relationships, and inevitably, some friendships faded. I found myself scrolling through an endless feed of content, not because I was actively engaging, but because it was expected. The pressure to keep up with everyone's lives, to be seen as "present," felt overwhelming. The constant stream of notifications, the pressure to respond immediately – it started to feel like a burden. The initial thrill of instant connection had morphed into a never-ending to-do list of virtual interactions. I realized that I wasn't truly engaged, I was just ticking boxes. (Image: A GIF of a person sighing, followed by a GIF of them deleting a Snapchat contact.) The Benefits of Deleting Snapchat Friends (and Why You Might Want to Consider It) • Reduced Stress and Anxiety: Less notifications mean less mental clutter. Imagine the feeling of finally clearing out your inbox. • Improved Focus and Productivity: Less time spent scrolling through Snapchat means more time for activities you genuinely enjoy. • Reconnecting with Meaningful Relationships: This digital decluttering can allow you to fully engage in the real-world relationships that truly matter. • Greater Self-Awareness: Deleting contacts that no longer serve you forces you to examine your priorities and connections. • Improved Mental Well-being: By letting go of superficial relationships, you free up mental space for those that are genuinely supportive and positive.

The Psychology of Digital Decluttering

Understanding Unfriending as a Necessary Choice

Unfriending on Snapchat isn't about being mean or antisocial. It's about being proactive about your mental well-being. Think of it as pruning a garden. You remove the dead or dying branches to allow the healthy shoots to flourish. We can apply this principle to our digital lives as well. (Image: A garden pruning metaphor; dead branches on a plant compared to inactive Snapchat connections on a list.) We often maintain digital connections for social validation or a sense of belonging, even when those relationships aren't actively enriching our lives. The fear of missing out (FOMO) and the pressure to maintain a certain online persona can be powerful motivators to stay connected. However, consciously removing these superficial connections allows you to truly focus on the genuine connections that sustain you.

The Importance of Self-Care and Setting Boundaries

Your mental health is paramount. It's completely acceptable to prioritize your own well-being. Deleting friends doesn't mean you're abandoning them; it means you're prioritizing your own happiness. This isn't about severing ties completely; it's about recognizing that some connections are better maintained outside the digital realm. (Image: A collage showcasing self-care activities like journaling, spending time in nature, and engaging in hobbies.) It's important to set healthy boundaries. If a friendship is consistently draining or unproductive, it's okay to decide that this specific connection isn't a good fit for you anymore. This self-care extends to digital spaces and is a crucial aspect of a balanced lifestyle.

Navigating the Digital Landscape: Practical Steps

Deleting friends on Snapchat is surprisingly straightforward. 1. Open the Snapchat app. 2. Navigate to your friends list. 3. Find the friend you want to remove. 4. Tap and hold on their name. 5. Select "Unfriend." While seemingly simple, it's not without potential emotional implications, particularly if you haven't been communicating with that person. (Image: A step-by-step visual guide on how to unfriend someone on Snapchat.) Remember to approach this with empathy. It's a personal choice to be made according to your comfort level, which can be an important part of self-care. If you're uncomfortable with the interaction, it's understandable to set those digital boundaries.

Beyond the Delete: Cultivating Meaningful Connections

So, you've deleted a few friends from your Snapchat list, now what? The key isn't about being absent from social media, but about being present in your life. Investing in quality time with friends in person is more valuable than endless digital interactions. (Image: A picture of friends laughing together in a real-life setting.) Focus on building real-life relationships that support your emotional well-being. Cultivating deeper, more meaningful connections will replace the need for superficial interactions. (Image: Visual representation of building

How to Delete Friends on Snapchat: A Step-by-Step Guide

In the fast-paced world of social media, sometimes you need a little digital decluttering. Whether you've drifted apart from a Snapchat friend, want to streamline your friend list, or simply prefer to keep your connections more curated, knowing how to remove someone from your Snapchat friends list is a handy skill. It's a common question, and thankfully, Snapchat makes it pretty straightforward. This comprehensive guide will walk you through the process, offering insights and tips to make managing your Snapchat connections a breeze.

Snapchat, with its ephemeral messages and fun filters, is all about capturing moments and sharing them with your closest pals. But as life changes, so do our social circles. You might be wondering, "Can I actually delete friends on Snapchat?" The answer is a resounding yes! And it's not as complicated as you might think. Let's dive into the simple steps.

Why You Might Want to Delete a Snapchat Friend

Before we get into the "how-to," let's briefly touch upon why someone might want to disconnect from a Snapchat contact. The reasons are as varied as people themselves:

Drifting Apart

This is perhaps the most common reason. Friendships evolve, and sometimes people just grow in different directions. You might no longer share the same interests, live in the same area, or even talk much anymore. Removing them from your Snapchat list is a way to reflect this changed dynamic.

Privacy Concerns

You might feel uncomfortable with someone having access to your Snaps, Stories, or even just knowing your online presence. Perhaps you've had a falling out or are concerned about how they might use your information. Deleting a friend is a direct way to limit their access.

Streamlining Your Friend List

A long, unmanaged friend list can feel overwhelming. It might include people you barely know, old acquaintances, or even fake accounts. Cleaning up your list can make your Snapchat experience more focused and enjoyable, ensuring you're only sharing with people who matter to you.

Avoiding Unwanted Content or Interactions

If someone is consistently sending you Snaps you don't enjoy, tagging you in things you dislike, or engaging in behavior you find bothersome, removing them is the most effective solution.

How to Delete a Friend on Snapchat: The Mobile App Method

The primary way most people use Snapchat is through their mobile devices. Whether you're on an iPhone or an Android, the process is virtually identical and very intuitive. Let's break it down:

Step 1: Open Snapchat and Navigate to Your Friends List

First things first, open the Snapchat app on your smartphone. Once you're on the camera screen (the default view), you'll need to access your friend list. The easiest way to do this is by tapping the chat icon (the speech bubble) in the bottom-left corner of the screen. This will take you to your chat screen, where you'll see a list of your recent conversations. Your friends list is typically found at the top of this screen, often indicated by your Bitmoji or profile picture, or by tapping the person icon in the top-right corner of the chat screen. Alternatively, you can swipe right from the camera screen to access your chat screen.

Step 2: Find the Friend You Want to Delete

Scroll through your list of friends until you locate the person you wish to remove. You can also use the search bar at the top of the "Friends" or "My Friends" screen to quickly find their name. Make sure you're looking at your actual "Friends" list, not just recent chat participants, as this ensures you're targeting the correct connection.

Step 3: Tap on the Friend's Name to Access Their Profile

Once you've found the friend, tap on their name or their Bitmoji. This will open up their individual profile page. On this page, you'll see their Snapcode, their username, their display name, and potentially other information they've chosen to share.

Step 4: Tap the Three Dots (Menu Icon)

In the top-right corner of the friend's profile page, you'll see a small icon with three horizontal dots. This is the menu icon. Tap on it to reveal a set of options related to that friend.

Step 5: Select "More"

A small pop-up menu will appear. From this menu, select the option that says "More." This will expand the options further and lead you to the specific action you want to take.

Step 6: Choose "Delete Friend"

Within the "More" menu, you'll find several options, including "Block," "Report," and crucially, "Delete Friend." Tap on "Delete Friend."

Step 7: Confirm Your Decision

Snapchat will then present you with a confirmation prompt, usually saying something like, "Are you sure you want to delete [Friend's Name]?" This is to prevent accidental deletions. Tap on "Delete" or "Confirm" to finalize the action. And just like that, they're gone from your Snapchat friends list!

What Happens When You Delete a Friend on Snapchat?

It's important to understand the implications of deleting someone. Here's what occurs on the platform:

1. They are removed from your Friends List: This is the primary outcome. They will no longer appear when you scroll through your friends.
2. You are removed from their Friends List: This is a mutual action. When you delete someone, they are also removed from your friend list.
3. You can no longer send them Snaps directly: You won't be able to send them direct Snaps or Chat messages unless they add you back as a friend.
4. They can no longer see your private Stories: If you have a private Story set to only be viewable by your friends, they will lose access.
5. They can still see your Public Stories (if applicable): If you have a public Story or are part of a shared Story, they might still be able to view that content depending on your privacy settings.
6. Their Snaps and Chats will disappear: Any existing Snaps or Chat messages you have with this person will typically be deleted from your device and their device (depending on the ephemeral nature of Snaps and chats).
7. They won't be notified: Snapchat does not send a notification to the person you've deleted. They will only realize you're no longer friends when they can't find you on their list or send you Snaps.

Deleting vs. Blocking on Snapchat

It's common to confuse deleting a friend with blocking someone. While both actions remove a connection, they have different implications:

Deleting a Friend

As detailed above, this simply removes the person from your friend list. They can potentially add you back, and you can add them back, and you can still see their public profile (if they have one). It's a less severe action, best suited for when you want to manage your friend list without necessarily cutting off all future contact.

Blocking a Friend

Blocking is a more permanent and restrictive action. When you block someone on Snapchat:

1. They are removed from your friend list.
2. You are removed from their friend list.
3. They cannot see your profile or add you as a friend again unless you unblock them.
4. They cannot send you Snaps, Chat messages, or call you.
5. They cannot view your Stories.
6. You cannot see their profile or add them as a friend unless you unblock them.

Blocking is best used when you want to prevent someone from contacting you altogether. If you're looking for advice on how to block someone, the process is very similar to deleting, with "Block" being an option in the "More" menu on their profile.

Can You Delete Multiple Friends at Once?

Unfortunately, as of now, Snapchat does not offer a feature to delete multiple friends simultaneously. You have to go through the process of deleting each friend individually from their profile. This can be a bit tedious if you have a large list to clear, but it ensures that you're making conscious decisions about each removal. Some third-party apps or scripts claim to offer bulk deletion, but these are generally not supported by Snapchat and can pose security risks. It's always best to stick to the official app's functionalities for your privacy and security.

Tips for Managing Your Snapchat Friends List

Keeping your Snapchat connections in check doesn't have to be a chore. Here are some proactive tips:

Regularly Review Your Friends List

Make it a habit to occasionally scroll through your friends list. If you see names you don't recognize or people you haven't interacted with in years, consider whether you still want them on your list.

Be Mindful of Who You Add

When people send you friend requests, take a moment to consider if you know them and if you want them to have access to your Snapchat content. You can always ignore or delete friend requests from people you don't want to connect with.

Utilize Privacy Settings

Snapchat offers robust privacy settings. You can control who can send you Snaps and Chats, who can see your Story, and who can find you via your username or contact list. Regularly reviewing and adjusting these settings can prevent unwanted connections in the first place.

Think Before You Accept

If someone you met briefly adds you, and you're unsure about it, it's okay to let the request expire or to delete it. You don't have to accept every single friend request you receive.

Conclusion: Taking Control of Your Snapchat Connections

Deleting friends on Snapchat is a straightforward process designed to give you control over your social circle on the app. Whether you're decluttering your list, protecting your privacy, or simply moving on from certain connections, the steps are easy to follow. Remember to differentiate between deleting and blocking, and consider regularly managing your friends list to maintain a comfortable and enjoyable Snapchat experience. By following this guide, you can confidently curate your Snapchat world, ensuring you're sharing your moments with the people who truly matter.

So, next time you feel the need for a digital refresh, you'll know exactly how to delete friends on Snapchat. Happy snapping!

Deleting Friends on Snapchat: A Comprehensive Guide to Managing Your Social Circle Snapchat remains one of the most beloved social platforms, known for its ephemeral messaging and intimate, real-time connections. One common yet personal action users often consider is deleting friends—whether to reduce clutter, manage privacy, or simply reflect changing relationships. Knowing how to efficiently and permanently remove contacts is key to maintaining control over your Snapchat experience.

Why Delete Friends on Snapchat?

There are several thoughtful reasons someone might choose to delete a friend from Snapchat. Privacy is a primary concern; unfollowing someone helps limit who can see your stories and snap messages. Over time, friendships may evolve or fade, and removing someone is a clear way to acknowledge that shift without awkwardness. Additionally, managing your friend list fosters a more curated, meaningful social environment—keeping only those who add value to your daily interactions. In a platform where digital footprints matter, proactively shaping your network supports both mental well-being and digital hygiene.

Deleting a friend isn't just about cutting ties—it's about regaining agency over your online presence. In an era where social media can feel overwhelming, having the ability to trim your circle with ease empowers users to stay connected on their own terms, fostering a more authentic and positive Snapchat experience.

How to Delete Friends: Step-by-Step Instructions

Deleting someone on Snapchat is straightforward and accessible through the app's intuitive interface. To begin, open Snapchat and navigate to your Friends list, either by tapping the friend icon or swiping left from the camera screen. Locate the user you wish to remove, then tap their profile picture or name to open their profile. From there, look for the gear icon or settings menu—this is usually found in the top-right corner of their profile. Once inside, select the option labeled "Remove Friend" or a similar prompt. Snapchat will prompt a confirmation, usually requiring you to double-tap to finalize the deletion. After confirming, the contact will disappear from your list instantly, with no immediate notifications to the removed user—keeping the process discreet and private.

This process ensures a clean, clutter-free friend list, allowing you to focus on meaningful interactions while preserving your personal boundaries. Because Snapchat updates frequently, the exact wording or menu placement may shift slightly over time, but the core function remains consistent across versions, making it easy for users to stay in control without hassle.

Key Insights and Best Practices

While Snapchat makes deleting friends simple, it's worth considering how often you review and refine your connections. A sparse, intentional friend list often leads to higher engagement and more satisfying interactions. Remember, removing someone doesn't sever all ties—you can still view their public stories or send a one-time message if needed, though direct communication is blocked after removal. Also, keep in mind that while you can't undo the deletion instantly, Snapchat does not allow re-adding deleted friends, so choose with care.

Strategically managing your friends helps maintain a Snapchat environment that feels personal and stress-free. By periodically assessing who stays in your circle, you cultivate a space where memories and messages matter more—free from unnecessary noise or lingering discomfort.

Long-Term Benefits and Future Outlook

Mastering the skill of deleting friends on Snapchat supports a healthier digital lifestyle. As social platforms grow more complex, the ability to curate relationships becomes increasingly valuable—not just for privacy, but for mental well-being. Looking ahead, Snapchat and similar apps are likely to enhance personalization features, possibly introducing smarter tools for relationship management, such as automated insights or gentle prompts to reflect on connections. However, the core function of direct deletion will remain essential, empowering users to take ownership of their online identity.

Embracing this control fosters a more authentic digital experience—one where every connection serves a purpose, and every interaction feels intentional and meaningful. In a world where social media shapes daily life, tools like easy friend deletion help users stay grounded, focused, and truly in charge of their virtual world.

Why You Might Want to Delete Friends on Snapchat

In the fast-paced world of social media, our digital connections are constantly evolving. Snapchat, with its ephemeral nature and focus on close friends, is no exception. While the platform encourages sharing moments and maintaining connections, there are several valid reasons why you might need to remove someone from your Snapchat friends list. Perhaps a friendship has drifted, you've encountered a privacy concern, or you simply want to curate a more focused and enjoyable experience. Whatever your motivation, understanding how to delete friends on Snapchat is a fundamental skill for managing your online presence effectively.

Beyond personal reasons, there are also practical considerations. A cluttered friends list can make it harder to find and engage with the people who matter most. Removing inactive or unwanted contacts can streamline your feed and reduce unwanted notifications. This guide will walk you through the straightforward process of deleting friends, ensuring you have complete control over your Snapchat network.

Understanding Snapchat's Friend Management

Before diving into the "how-to," it's important to grasp Snapchat's friend system. Unlike other platforms where "unfriending" can be a prominent feature, Snapchat's terminology and approach are slightly different. You can't directly "unfriend" someone in the same way you might on Facebook. Instead, you have the option to "Remove Friend" or "Block Friend." Each action has distinct implications for your relationship on the platform.

Removing a friend is the most common way to take someone off your list. When you remove someone, they will no longer appear on your Snapchat friends list, and you won't be able to see their Stories or send them Snaps directly (unless they add you back). Crucially, removing a friend on Snapchat does not notify the other person directly, though they might notice they can no longer see your content or send you Snaps.

Blocking a friend is a more drastic measure. When you block someone, they are removed from your friends list, and they are prevented from adding you back, viewing your profile, or contacting you on Snapchat. This is a more definitive action for situations where you no longer wish to have any interaction with that individual on the platform. Understanding this distinction is key to choosing the right approach for your needs.

How to Delete Friends on Snapchat: Step-by-Step

The process of removing a friend on Snapchat is designed to be intuitive and accessible, whether you're using the mobile app on iOS or Android. Here's a detailed breakdown of the most common methods:

Method 1: Removing a Friend from Your Friends List

This is the most direct and commonly used method for taking someone off your Snapchat connections. This is ideal for when you simply want to declutter your friend list or reduce visibility with someone without outright blocking them.

1. Open the Snapchat App: Launch the Snapchat application on your smartphone.
2. Navigate to the Friends List: From the camera screen, swipe right to access your chat screen. Alternatively, tap the Bitmoji icon in the top-left corner to go to your profile, then tap the "Friends" icon (usually a silhouette of two people) at the top of your profile page.
3. Find the Friend You Want to Remove: Scroll through your list of friends to locate the specific individual you wish to delete.
4. Tap and Hold the Friend's Name: Once you've found them, press and hold down on their username.
5. Select "Manage Friendship": A menu will pop up. Tap on the "Manage Friendship" option.
6. Choose "Remove Friend": Another menu will appear with several options. Select "Remove Friend."
7. Confirm Your Action: A confirmation prompt will appear, asking if you are sure you want to remove this friend. Tap "Remove" to finalize the action.

Important Note: When you remove a friend this way, they will be removed from your friends list. They will not be directly notified, but they will no longer be able to see your Stories (unless your privacy settings allow it for public or friends-of-friends), and you will no longer see theirs. If you want to re-add them later, you will need to search for them and send a new friend request.

Method 2: Removing a Friend from a Chat

If you're currently in a chat conversation with the person you want to remove, you can also do it directly from the chat window. This is a quick shortcut if you're already interacting with them.

1. Open the Snapchat App: Launch the Snapchat application.
2. Go to the Chat Screen: Swipe right from the camera screen to access your chat list.
3. Open the Chat: Tap on the chat conversation with the friend you want to remove.
4. Tap the Menu Icon: In the top-right corner of the chat screen, you'll see a menu icon (often three dots or lines). Tap on it.
5. Select "Manage Friendship": A menu will appear with options related to the chat. Tap on "Manage Friendship."
6. Choose "Remove Friend": Just like in Method 1, select "Remove Friend" from the subsequent menu.
7. Confirm: Confirm your decision by tapping "Remove" in the confirmation prompt.

This method achieves the same result as removing them from your main friends list. It's a matter of convenience depending on your current activity within the app.

Method 3: Blocking a Friend (A More Definitive Action)

If your intention is to prevent someone from contacting you or seeing your profile on Snapchat altogether, blocking is the appropriate action. Blocking also removes the friend from your list.

1. Open the Snapchat App: Launch the Snapchat application.
2. Navigate to the Friends List or Profile: As described in Method 1, go to your profile page and then to your friends list, or find them via a chat.
3. Find the Friend: Locate the username of the person you wish to block.
4. Tap and Hold the Friend's Name: Press and hold down on their username.
5. Select "Manage Friendship": Tap on "Manage Friendship."
6. Choose "Block": Select the "Block" option.
7. Confirm Your Action: A prompt will ask for confirmation. Tap "Block" again.

What Happens When You Block Someone:

1. They are immediately removed from your friends list.
2. They cannot add you as a friend again.
3. They cannot see your Story.
4. They cannot send you Snaps or Chats.
5. You will also be removed from their friends list.

Blocking is a more permanent solution to ensure no further interaction on the platform. If you wish to unblock someone later, you will need to search for their username in the "Add Friends" section and send a new friend request.

Can You Delete a Friend Without Them

Knowing?

This is a common question for those who want to manage their social circles discreetly. The short answer is: yes, you can remove a friend on Snapchat without them being directly notified by the app. Snapchat does not send an automatic notification to users when someone removes them from their friends list.

However, it's important to understand how the other person might realize they've been removed. If they try to view your Story and can no longer see it, or if they try to send you a Snap and it doesn't go through, they might infer that you have removed them. This is particularly true if you previously had regular interaction. Therefore, while there's no direct "You've been unfriended" alert, the lack of access to your content can be a strong indicator.

Blocking, on the other hand, is more definitive in preventing future interaction, but again, there's no explicit notification sent. The absence of being able to send messages or view profiles is the key indicator for the blocked user.

Managing Your Snapchat Privacy Settings

Effectively managing your Snapchat friends list often goes hand-in-hand with optimizing your privacy settings. By controlling who can see your Stories, who can add you, and who can contact you, you can proactively shape your Snapchat experience and minimize the need for frequent friend deletions.

To adjust your privacy settings:

1. Tap your Bitmoji icon in the top-left corner to go to your profile.
2. Tap the gear icon (⚙️) in the top-right corner to access Settings.
3. Scroll down to the "Privacy Controls" section.

Here, you can customize:

1. Contact Me: Decide who can send you Snaps and Chats (Everyone, My Friends).
2. View My Story: Control who sees your Stories (Everyone, My Friends, Custom List). Using a custom list is an excellent way to share with specific groups while keeping others out.
3. See Me in Quick Add: Determines if others can find you through suggested friends.
4. Map: Manage who can see your location on Snap Map.

By regularly reviewing and updating these settings, you can maintain a more curated and secure Snapchat environment, making the process of managing individual friendships more straightforward.

What Happens When You Remove a Friend on Snapchat?

Understanding the consequences of removing a friend is crucial. When you perform the "Remove Friend" action:

1. They are removed from your friends list. This is the primary outcome.
2. You are removed from their friends list. This is a mutual action.
3. You will no longer see their Stories (unless they are set to public and you follow them as such, which is rare for direct friends).
4. They will no longer see your Stories (unless your privacy settings allow for a broader audience like "Friends of Friends" or "Everyone").
5. You will no longer be able to send them Snaps or Chats directly from your friends list.
6. They will no longer be able to send you Snaps or Chats directly from their friends list.

It's important to note that if you previously had a mutual Snapstreak with this person, it will be broken. Also, any past chat history remains in your chat window unless you manually delete the conversation.

Conclusion: Taking Control of Your Snapchat Network

Managing your Snapchat friends list is an essential part of curating a positive and private online experience. Whether you're looking to declutter your connections, distance yourself from unwanted interactions, or simply keep your digital social circle tight, understanding how to delete friends on Snapchat is a straightforward yet powerful tool.

By utilizing the "Remove Friend" option for general culling and the "Block Friend" option for more definitive separation, you can maintain complete control. Remember to periodically review your friends list and privacy settings to ensure your Snapchat environment remains as you intend it to be. With these steps, you can confidently navigate your social connections on one of the world's most popular messaging apps.

Questions & Answers About how to delete friends on snapchat

N o	Question	Answer
1	I've got too many Snapchat friends! How do I quickly remove someone without them knowing?	You can remove a friend on Snapchat without them being directly notified. Go to their profile by tapping their Bitmoji or name in your chat list, then tap the three dots in the top right corner and select 'Remove Friend'. They'll be removed from your friend list, and you from theirs, but you won't get a specific 'X removed you' alert.
2	Is there a way to mass delete Snapchat friends or a faster method than one by one?	Unfortunately, Snapchat doesn't offer a 'mass delete' feature for friends. You'll need to remove them individually from their profile page. It's a manual process, so if you have a lot of friends to remove, it might take some time.
3	What happens when I delete a friend on Snapchat? Do they get notified?	When you remove a friend on Snapchat, they are not directly notified with a specific alert. However, they will no longer be able to see your private Stories or send you snaps directly unless you are mutual friends again. They might notice this if they try to view your Story and can't, or if their snaps to you don't go through.
4	How do I remove someone from my Snapchat if we're not friends anymore?	If you've already been removed by someone, they won't appear in your active friend list. To remove them from your perspective, you'll need to go to your friend list, tap the 'All Friends' option, find their name, and then tap the red 'X' next to their name. This will unfriend them on your end.

5	Can I block someone on Snapchat while deleting them, and how does that differ?	Yes, you can block someone when you remove them. After selecting 'Remove Friend' from their profile, you'll see an option to 'Block [username]'. Blocking prevents them from seeing your profile, sending you snaps, or adding you as a friend. Removing them only takes them off your friend list.
